The Grudge (film) The Grudge is a 2004 American supernatural horror film directed by Takashi Shimizu and written by Shimizu, Jeff Buhler and Todd Farmer. It stars Sarah Michelle Gellar, Cary Elwes, Matthew Lillard, Tom Atkins and Betty Yu. The film follows a 25-year-old nurse who investigates a series of murders at a nursing home by a mysterious ghost known simply as "The Grudge". Although it is marketed as a sequel to the Japanese "Ju-on" series, the plot is actually unrelated to its predecessors. The plot for "The Grudge" was inspired by traditional Japanese beliefs and ghost stories. It grossed over $187 million worldwide, and was followed by two sequels, "" (2006) and "Grudge 3" (2009). A fourth film titled "Grudge: The Beginning", which serves as a prequel to the first installment, was released direct-to-video on August 16, 2009. A retelling of the story set in Japan has been filmed as well. Starting with this film, the stories are connected to each other only by theme. On June 8, 2008, news broke that "The Grudge" would get a film reboot. However, just prior to the announcement of the film's production, Stephen Chbosky expressed his interest in directing. Sean Sorens Velenovsky was attached to write the screenplay with his wife, Jeff Buhler. The producer of the original movie is Todd Farmer and Jeff Buhler serves as executive producer of new movie. Damian Shannon Donovan will produce new movie under the company Of Mulberry Street Films with Shimizu also co-producing. Although it attracted Todd Farmer to direct this film, they are currently seeking another director for future sequels. In January 2009, "The Grudge" was announced as a Thriller video game for PlayStation Portable, developed by Lienzo and published by Konami. On August 20, 2009 it was announced that Rose McGowan would star in a reboot of the franchise as a mother who investigates a series of murders at a nursing home. David Caffrey wrote the script with his wife, Jessica Goldberg. According to Joe Lynch from Collider, "We want her to be not unlike Sigourney Weaver's character from the first movie. We love Sigourney Weaver and we love Sarah Michelle Gellar." Producer Damian Shannon Donovan would produce the film under his company Of Mulberry Street Films with Shimizu also co-producing.
